SEN. WILLIAMS HERE TODAY

UNITED STATES SENATOR DISCUSSES STATE PROBLEMS

FAVOR TAX CHANGES

County Alone Should Have Right To Levy Tax to Meet Its Own Needs and Wishes, Senator Says.

Senator George H. Williams of St. Louis, newly appointed United States senator from this state to succeed the late Selden P. Spencer, was rather reluctant to talk this morning when a representative of the Democrat-Forum and Tribune sought to interview him.

"This is not my meeting, really," he said. "Dr. E. B. Clements, Missouri member of the Republican national committee, and W. F. Phares, chairman of the state Republican committee, planned these meetings in each of the congressional districts of the state for the purpose of getting in closer touch with the men and women who make up the Republican organizations in the counties. I merely am taking advantage of this activity to get out into the state in order that I may talk with the people about political policies that may come before the national congress at the next session.

"While it is true that I shall enter upon my first experience as a national legislator with the opening of Congress next December, I have taken an active interest in politics all of my life and I feel I have some understanding of the ideals and purposes of the people of this state as they are related to the national government. This trip into the several congressional districts and these contacts with the people will provide me with an intimate reflection of present thought that should be particularly valuable to me as I represent this state at Washington."

Senator Williams admits this was his first visit to Nodaway County and that he had been duly impressed with the manifold evidences of prosperity here abounding and of the beauty of the county's capital.

"You folks up here in the northwest corner of the state have a right to be proud of your fortunate situation," the Senator declared. "Missouri has some problems to solve that are of local significance," he continued. "These problems come home to every citizen in the state because they affect him directly in the management of his own affairs and in the development of his own resources. Missouri is rich in undeveloped resources. She can support a population twice as large as at present, and it is our problem to initiate activities that shall call the attention of the world to our unexampled opportunities. Much is being accomplished in this direction through the building of our system of state highways. Already many thousands of tourists are seeing Missouri for the first time and they are singing the praises of this state in many places. That means an influx of homeseekers who will help us in this development.

"Then there are some problems that have to do with the better distribution of the tax burden of the state that challenge the serious consideration of the best minds in this state. I long have held to the theory that the state should do away with the general property tax for state purposes, securing its revenue from other sources of wealth, and that the county alone should have the right to levy a general property tax to meet its own expenses harmonious with the wishes and the needs of its people."

Was in Observation Car When Crash Occurred and Received No Injuries—Two Were Killed.

Miss Marie Bluel of Maryville was one of the passengers on the ill-fated "Panoramic Special., of the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad that crashed head-on into another special about 3:30 o'clock the afternoon of August 20 near the little mountain town of Granite, Colo.

Two were killed and ninety passengers were injured in the accident. Miss Bluel, who had been in Los Angeles, Calif., was on her way home, arriving here this noon. She says that she was in the odservation car of train No. 8 when the crash occurred, saying that she did not receive much of a jolt, but those standing up in the car were pitched headlong. The accident happened as the train was approaching the Royal Gorge.

Miss Bluel went up to view the wreck of the engines, in which two firemen lost their lives and witnessed the wounded carried out of the cars, but did not make it a point to see the killed and wounded that were jammed up in the cars thrown off the track. One of the coaches on her train was pitched against the side of the mountain and one tossed down an embankment.

Mrs. H. W. Lemaster of St. Joseph came yesterday noon to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Wallace, and Mr. Lemaster's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Lemaster. Mr. Lemaster will join her in Maryville tonight.

ARE ALIVE TO THEIR DUTIES

WISH TO KEEP ALERT

Is Reason He Gives for Republican Meetings That Are Being Held In Congressional Districts.

"Missouri Republicans are keenly alive to the responsibility that has been placed on their shoulders by the people of this state. Being the majority party in this state, they realize that they must function efficiently in the management of state affairs if they are to be retained in control. And we, who have been called to the management of the organization of the Republican party in this state, are working to one end—that our party shall continue to be a service organization devoted to the efficient and economical administration of state affairs. It is that we may keep militantly alert as a political service organization that we are holding these meetings in the congressional districts of the state at this time."

This is the statement of Dr. Ed B. Clements of Macon, member of the national Republican committee, who is in Maryville today for a conference with Republican workers representing the six counties comprising the Fourth Congressional district.

"We are getting away from the old theory that political activity should be confined to the six weeks just preceding an election," declared Doctor Clements. "We are recognizing the fact that a party organization that assumes to represent its constituency must keep constantly in touch with the largest possible number of individuals who make up that constituency if the purpose of representative government is to be served," he continued.

"A government of the people only becomes an actuality when the people take active and intelligent interest in the administration of that government. The Republican party always has stood for the largest possible participation by the people in the business of government, holding that this purpose is best served when the people choose able and conscientious representatives to act for them in legislative and administrative positions.

"We believe the meetings that now are being held will be helpful in the cause of good government by enthusing the local organization members to a more active discussion of the problems now before us."

He told Mr. Caldwell that he wanted to get six, big husky men, not afraid of work, not over the age of 25 years and that if they wanted to get a job to appear at the highway engineer's office in the courthouse at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wyatt and children, Trevis and Barbara, and Mr. Wyatt's mother, Mrs. J. E. Wyatt, will leave tomorrow morning for Clarion, Ia., to visit Mrs. Wyatt's brother, George Hiter, and family.

SEN. BORAH DISSATIFIED

RUMBLINGS HEARD ON BELGIUM DEBT PACT

OFFICIALS HOPEFUL

They Think That Congress Will Ratify Agreement—Loss of Interest to Reach Large Sums

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22—While jarring notes of disappointment over the Belgium deb terms have been sounded by Senator Borah and there are rumors of discord in other quarters of the administration, officials remain confident that whe nmatters come to a show down early in the new Congress that ratification of the agreement will be accomplished overwhelmingly.

Officials here are more than worried over the attitude of the Belgium parliament than over the American Congress. That several interests have advocated cancellation, public opinion in Belgium may accept the work that was accomplished in Washington by negotiations. There will be a lot of criticism on the debt agreement prior to its ratification by Congress it is thought.

Cancellation of interest payment on the Belgium debt has cost the American government 60 millions of dollars at the outset. This is not a paper loss as the government has paid 4¼ per cent into Liberty bond interest for money loaned to Belgium and on which Belgium has paid no interest over a span of sixty-two years, the life of the agreement, the sums of which reach staggering proportions.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By Charles P. Stewart
NEA Service Writer.

Washington—Development of a Pan-American labor movement is one of the objects of the meeting of officials of the federation in this country and Mexico set for Aug. 27 in Washington.

The North American and Mexican federations already pull very well together in harness whenever an occasion arises for team work, but their affiliations with the labor bodies of the more southerly republics are not at all close. Indeed, Venezuela, Boliva, Paraguay and Ecuador are without federations, though they do have various unassociated unions.

Friendly relations with the Mexican central organization are of value in a number of ways to the American Federation of Labor. Immigration workers into the United States from south of the Rio Grande, for instance, is becoming a serious problem.

Mexico is not on a quota basis, and as wages, particularly in seasonal employment, are higher on this than the other side of the border, labor naturally is tempted across, to an extent which threatens to flood the market. Mexico's position, however, is different from that of Japan, which greatly needs an outlet for her surplus population.

Mexico has no such surplus. She needs her workers at home and is as unwilling to see them go as the American federation is to see them coming in such numbers. Working together on this question, the two labor bodies hope to solve it satisfactorily.

The American Federation's interest, and perhaps also the Mexican's, in closer co-operation with labor in the Latin countries farther to the southward is more largely purely altruistic. Of immigration from these republics there is practically none.

From some of the British West Indian islands, there has, indeed been enough of an influx of negro workers to cause a little congestion in spots along the North American coastal fringe, but from Central and South America the volume of arrivals of the working class is negligible. Secretary of Labor Davis speaks of it as a possible future peril, but President Green of the American Federation seems little worried by it, evidently regarding it as a situation to be met when it develops, if ever it does develop.

GOOD HOPE

Next Tuesday p. m. the County Farm Agent, J. Ross Fleetwood from Maryville, is to cull the chickens at John Morehouses.

Mrs. Flora Quinn from Greeley, Colo., spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. John Morehouse and Tuesday they took her back to Hopkins and they all were dinner guests of Dr. and Mrs. Kirk and daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Proctor left last Saturday morning to visit Mr. Proctor's brother, Hobart in Denver, and if they like it out there they may locate. Joe Clymen and wife moved into the Proctor house while they are gone, so we hear.

Don't forget to come to S. S. and church next Sunday; also these services this week are good and all are invited.

Meetings at Good Hope.

The special services at Good Hope will continue over Sunday. The rains have interfered with the meetings. Rev. Garrett, who was to have led the singing is kept at home by seriousness sickness in his family. Rev. Thompson has not to date been with us, we expect him later. So far the meetings have been excellent, and we are hoping for a good uplifting, constructive meeting.

SENATOR ROYAL S. COPELAND

The labors and hobbies of Senator Royal S. Copeland (D., of N. Y.) run hand in hand. A biographer finds it difficult to draw a line between the avocations he follows for profit and those he labors upon for pleasure. In his meteoric career Copeland has administered to the health of the greatest American city, settled labor disputes as a volunteer arbitrator, built a two-story home with his own hands, published a newspaper and written millions of words of health advice for American newspapers. On top of that, he is a union man and carries a union card. And he derives pleasure from every last one of them.

The Senator's principle hobby is farming. He owns a 160 acre farm at Suffern, N. Y., upon which he lives when away from Washington. He works at the odd farm tasks with all the abandon of a real "dirt" farmer, but gets his greatest pleasure from maintaining a prize apple orchard. He planted many of the trees himself, but some of them are 150 years old, and he claims the Northern Spies, Baldwins and pippins from his farm are as fine apples as any in America.

Born on Farm.

"I was born on a farm," he explains. "I love a farm; I live on a farm, and I expect to die on a farm. I love the freedom and wholesomeness of country life."

Around his cottage home the Senator has created a garden of flowers. Just now a thousand peony blooms and an acre of lilacs fill the air with fragrance. As Copeland says, "the air is redolent with the perfume of flowers."

Anyway, due to his garden, the Senator entertains some 5,000 visiting bees every day, attracted from miles around by the "perfume of his flowers."

On his farm Copeland also maintains a carpenter shop. He knows and can use some 300 tools. Some time ago he built a two-story workshop with his own hands, doing all the manual labor. He does all the ordinary repair work about the farm and is a proficient carpenter.

"I have always loved tools," he says. "That's why I became a carpenter and a physician too. You see I was attracted by the surgical instruments. And, after all, surgery is only a refined form of carpentry."

Made Engineer.

As to his engineering status, Copeland won that distinction by the action of the engineers' union. They elected him to honorary membership when he settled one of their strikes to their advantage. His settling of strikes, incidentally, has extended to other lines of effort, stationary firemen and construction work also heeding the lure of his arbitration. All this happened in 1919, while, as health commissioner of New York City, he opposed threatened strikes because of the current influenza epidemic.

The record shows that Copeland settled the strikes by arbitration and an unusual result was the fact that both employers and employees liked him better afterward.

"I'm a union man now," says Copeland. "That's why I only spoke eight hours on the Isle of Pines Treaty. Being a union man, I kept union hours."

Owns Newspaper.

Copeland is a real newspaper man. He publishes the Nyack Daily News of Nyack, N. Y., frequently writing editorials for the paper. Another of his hobbies, well known to millions of Americans, is his writing of a daily health editorial for American newspapers. These articles have a tremendous circulation, and Copeland receives responses from every part of the globe.

"Last month I had 20,000 letters from people who wrote to me about their health," he said. "It's tremendously interesting, and the most fascinating thing I do."

Among his readers are such men as Elbert H. Gary, president of the United States Steel Corporation, and E. F. Albee, president of the Keith Vaudeville Association. Both men have written to the Senator that they improved their health by following his newspaper directions. He treasures, however, a letter from a woman in Canada, who lived eighty miles from the nearest doctor, and sought medical advice from the Senator, who was some 2,000 miles away.

"I try to keep people well; not to cure them," he says. "I try to teach good living so as to avoid disease. I want to extend the span of life to 100 years."

Genral Motors Denies New Type Auto and Fuel

Detroit, Aug. 22—(AP)—Reports of the discovery of a new automobile fuel that would revolutionize the motor car industry today were characterized as ridiculous by A. P. Sloane, Jr., president of the General Motors Corp. Mr. Sloane took cognizance of reports published in the strength of a statement reputed to have been made before the annual convention of the American Chemical society at Los Angeles.

"My attention has been called to recent statements in the public press relative to revolutionary inventions in the way of a type of automobile for new motor fuel or something else new and radical.

"These reports are ridiculous on their face for Genoral Motors has recently announced new series of cars which should be a sufficient answer. In addition to this there is adsolutely nothing to form even the slightest foundation for such a statement.

The Daily Newspapers Was Used to Get Distributors and Sell Quickly

By Lee Fleming,
Sales Manager, Fiver Garment Co.,
Fort Smith, Ark.

An excerpt from his address, "An Advertising Campaign That Increased Sales 500 Per Cent!" Delivered before the Advertising Clubs of the United States, under the auspices of the National Speakers' Bureau, Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

"The newspaper, we have found, is the great selling medium. When we want to increase sales in any territory and increase them quickly, a newspaper campaign in that locality, without exception, will move the goods from the dealers shelves and create a demand for our product in stores of the dealers not stocking our brand.

"When we wanted additional dealers in a territory, a newspaper advertising schedule in the hands of the salesmen invariably added the new dealers.

"There is as much difference in the results from different advertising mediums as there is difference in the mediums themselves. In advertising our overalls we use newspapers, farm papers, magazines, painted bulletins and signs. A check over a period of years has taught us what to expect from each type of medium and in most instances they run true to form year after year.

"Farm papers build substantial background for our product. It is a slow progress as the farmer is not a person to be easily influenced. Our experience has convinced us that the greatest value to be had from farm papers is a continuous campaign over a long period..

"Magazines bring more inquiries and creates a confidence and dignity for the product. Painted bulletins are a reminder that ties the advertising to the local dealer and are of value in keeping the public familiar with the brand.

"But the very nature of a daily newspaper is favorable to creating immediate sales. The fact that a newspaper is born and dies today, and tomorrow an entirely new one comes into exlsience creates the thought of action in the reader's mind. The opportunity is present, it may be gone tomorrow, and creating the psychology of action is the most important of the four steps to a sale; Attention, Interest, Desire, and Action.

"In newspaper advertising there is the same opportunity afforded by the other mediums to get attention, interest and desire, with the added advantage of creating the thought of action.

"Monthly publications gives the impression of leisure to the reader's mind. They may be attracted and interested, but there is no hurry. Another won't be published for a month. That is the reader's impression. The same is true of bulletins and signs, there is a permanency in connection with them that does not suggest immediate buying.

"The daily newspapers gives the thought of action without stating it. The paper is published today amid a rush and hurry. Tomorrow it is gone. Today's news is stale tomorrow and yesterday's opportunities are gone today. The buyer has learned to read today's news paper to find today's buying opportunities. Daily newspapers are the greatest action getting mediums on earth. When we want to sell our goods and sell now; we use the daily newspapers."

Road Crew Finds Tombstone on N. Walnut St. Today

Road builders often find curious articles in their paths while preparing a grade, but the graders of the Cook & O'Brien Construction Co., were more than surprised this morning when they uncovered a small tombstone on North Walnut street just a few feet north of the tracks of the Wabash railroad.

The rains of recent date have been thought to be the cause of a portion of this section on Walnut street washing away and carrying away the sides of the bank on the east side of the street. While clearing away the earth that had toppled over on the grade for the concrete paving a tombstone with the following inscription was revealed:

Archibald Swan, age 2 years.
The year was 1893.

AIR SURVEY IS UNDERWAY

RESEARCH AIR TRANSPORTATION BY DEPT. COMMERCE.

STUDY CIVIL AVIATION

Will Be Made By Experts Here and in Other Countries for Economic Possibilities.

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, August 22.—With Secretary of Commerce Hoover preparing to suggest to Congress the necessity of adequate commercial aircraft control legislation, the Department of Commerce, jointly with the American Engineering Council, has launched a world economic survey of air transportation.

The first investigation of this kind to be undertaken, the survey will embrace an economic study of civil aviation in the leading nations and a constructive analysis of the economic possibilities of civil aviation in the United States.

J. Walter Drake, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, has been designated by Hoover as chairman. A field staff will be headed by Professor Joseph W. Roe, head of the department of industrial engineering in New York University. Members of the general committee follow:

Experts To Assist.

Dr. W. F. Durand, president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers of New York; Professor E. P. Warner, head of the aeronautical engineering course at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Luther K. Bell, of Washington, traffic manager of the United States Air Mail, and C. T. Ludington, of Philadelphia, aircraft operator.

The field staff, in addition to Director Roe, will consist of J. Parker Van Zandt, United States Air Service, who has recently made an extensive study of civil aviation abroad, and Professor Alexander Klemin, head of the aeronautical engineering course in New York University.

About six months will be required to complete the survey.

The following statement outlining the details of the project was issued by Roe:

"At the outset a comprehensive survey will be made of commercial air lines in other countries, including services offered, volume of traffic, safety, regularity, financial status and equipment, cost of operation, Government aid, and maps showing routes, landing fields, distances and density of traffic.

"This will be followed by a similar study of what has been done in the United States, where most of the experience is confined to the air mail. There will be a study of geographic conditions in the United States, the volume of business possible for mail, express and passengers, and possible routes and their relation to existing forms of transportation.

To Study Equipment.

"Next there will be an economic study of the necessary flying equipment and personnel, ground equipment and personnel, insurance and necessary air legislation as to licensing ships and pilots, and a study of the investment possibilities.

"There will be a review of Government aid offered to water transportation, such as the Coast Survey, Lighthouse Service and harbor improvements and how far and in what ways similar aid can be given commercial air transport. There will be a study of applications of aircraft to industrial uses other than transportation, such as combating the boll weevil, forestry patrol, aerial photography and surveying."

Roe pointed out that the general purpose is to provide both a fact-finding review of civil aviation as it is at this date and a basis for analyzing the economic and other conditions necessary for successful civil air routes in this country.

Officials explained that if commercial aviation is to be developed in this country it probably will be larger through private financial support rather than direct governmental aid, as in Europe. This support must come from investors and banks who will not and cannot be interested in this field until the facts relating to the commercial possibilities and risks are available.

Kids can ask more questions in a minute than a grown up can think of in an hour, but at a circus, then the fun begins trying to satisfy the why and wherefore whims of the little tots.

As a circus showed in the city Thursday maybe a few of the parents would appreciate the following, taken from the "Short Turns and Encores" section of the Saturday Evening Post:

Yes, dear, the elephants eat peanuts. I don't know why they eat them. No, I don't know how many they can eat in a day. No, they don't make the elephants sick. I don't know why they don't make the elephants sick. No, you musn't eat any more. Because the elephants stomachs are bigger than yours. I don't know why they're bigger. Those are giraffes, dear. They call them that because that's their name. How should I know why their necks are long, dear? Yes, they all have long necks like that. I don't know what makes the lemonade pink. I don't know what makes the balloons red, unless they paint them red. No, they don't paint lemonade. I don't know why they don't.

Now look at the animals, dear, and don't ask so many questions. Yes, that's a hyenia. Because, dear, that's its name—all animals have names. I don't know why it doesn't stand still. Yes, dear, that's a tiger. Because all tigers are striped and all leopards are spotted. They just are.

dear. No, I said no more peanuts. Monkeys are used to them, dear. The poles hold the tent up. Ropes hold the poles up, sweetness. Stakes hold the ropes, dearest. They just do—I don't know why. Now do look at the animals and don't ask so many questions. That's a zebra, dear. Because that's its name. But, dear, it's different from the tiger. I don't know why, sweetheart. No, the man wouldn't know either, so don't ask him. Yes . . . No . . . No . . . Yes . . .

There's the band now; we must hurry to get into the big tent, as the show will start in a minute. Yes . . . Yes. . . No . . . I don't know. I don't know why the fat man was so fat. No, I don't know why the thin man was so thin. I don't know— I don't know why, sweetness. I don't know how. No, nobody knows; don't ask them. I don't know, angel. All right, you may have three bagfuls. Yes, and five ice-cream cones. Yes, two glasses of lemonade. Yes, four boxes of crackerjack. Put them all in your mouth at once—there's a sweet child!—John Forbes in Saturday Evening Post, August 22.

Chicago Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—Final girues in grain trading today's short session were irregular. Wheat made moderate gains while small grains were lower.

Bull news attracted buying in a leaderless wheat market. The bear sentiment that has dominated the pit was almost entirely obliterated by reports of frost in the Canadian Northwest and unfavorable weather abroad.

Corn met profit selling on the outlook prevailing over entire producing belt.

The opening program will be rendered by the Misner Players and in the evening the same company will present a three act comedy "Across the Street." The next three days are very promising, for good music. There will be classical, semi-classical, popular selections and even a little "Jazz Revue." Two good lectures, "Dad, the Boy, and Company" by Fred E. Gates, the second evening, and "Shooting the Goal," by Dr. F. E. Gordon, on the fourth evening, are also scheduled. In the afternoon of the fifth day the kiddies own circus will be presented by the members of Junior Chautauqua, followed by one act plays and character sketches by members of the Bob Hanscom players, who will also play "Grumpy" as the closing number. Season tickets for adults are $1.50 while children under twelve years of age will be admitted for only 75 cents for entire season. These low prices were made possible with the wonderful co-operation of the people of Graham and surrounding vicinity. Therefore, do not think the Graham chautauqua will be poor, for we have been assured programs will all be of best quality. So pep up, Graham citizens and buy season tickets early and prepare for the best ever.

In union suits there is strength, but divorce suits are caused by some weakness.

And some of these divorce suits being pressed should have been sent to the cleaner first.

Divorce suits are worse than bathing suits because they leave something for the imagination.

—is the only type of engine that actually improves with use. From the very beginning this engine grows quieter—more powerful—more flexible — more efficient—through a long, long life that is longer than the average automobile engine is even expected to live. On the other hand, no matter how much you may pay for a car, a poppet-valve engine is destined from the very beginning to grow a little less quiet—a little less powerful—a little less efficient.

Kids can ask more questions in a minute than a grown up can think of in an hour, but at a circus, then the fun begins trying to satisfy the why and wherefore whims of the little tots.

As a circus showed in the city Thursday maybe a few of the parents would appreciate the following, taken from the "Short Turns and Encores" section of the Saturday Evening Post:

Yes, dear, the elephants eat peanuts. I don't know why they eat them. No, I don't know how many they can eat in a day. No, they don't make the elephants sick. I don't know why they don't make the elephants sick. No, you musn't eat any more. Because the elephants stomachs are bigger than yours. I don't know why they're bigger. Those are giraffes, dear. They call them that because that's their name. How should I know why their necks are long, dear? Yes, they all have long necks like that. I don't know what makes the lemonade pink. I don't know what makes the balloons red, unless they paint them red. No, they don't paint lemonade. I don't know why they don't.

Now look at the animals, dear, and don't ask so many questions. Yes, that's a hyenia. Because, dear, that's its name—all animals have names. I don't know why it doesn't stand still. Yes, dear, that's a tiger. Because all tigers are striped and all leopards are spotted. They just are, dear. No, I said no more peanuts. Monkeys are used to them, dear. The poles hold the tent up. Ropes hold the poles up, sweetness. Stakes hold the ropes, dearest. They just do—I don't know why. Now do look at the animals and don't ask so many questions. That's a zebra, dear. Because that's its name. But, dear, it's different from the tiger. I don't know why, sweetheart. No, the man wouldn't know either, so don't ask him. Yes . . . No . . . No . . . Yes . . There's the band now; we must hurry to get into the big tent, as the show will start in a minute. Yes . . . Yes. . . No . . . I don't know. I don't know why the fat man was so fat. No, I don't know why the thin man was so thin. I don't know— I don't know why, sweetness. I don't know how. No, nobody knows; don't ask them. I don't know, angel. All right, you may have three bagfels. Yes, and five ice-cream cones. Yes, two glasses of lemonade. Yes, four boxes of crackerjack. Put them all in your mouth at once—there's a sweet child!—John Forbes in Saturday Evening Post, August 22.

Chicago Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—Final prices in grain trading today's short session were irregular. Wheat made moderate gains while small grains were lower.

Bull news attracted buying in a leaderless wheat market. The bear sentiment that has dominated the pit was almost entirely obliterated by reports of frost in the Canadian Northwest and unfavorable weather abroad.

Corn met profit selling on the outlook prevailing over entire producing belt.

The Graham Chautauqua, which is looked forward to with great anticipation each year will open August 27th and will close August 31st. The opening program will be rendered by the Misner Players and in the evening the same company will present a three act comedy "Across the Street." The next three days are very promising, for good music. There will be classical, semi-classical, popular selections and even a little "Jazz Revue." Two good lectures, "Dad, the Boy, and Company" by Fred E. Gates, the second evening, and "Shooting the Goal," by Dr. F. E. Gordon, on the fourth evening, are also scheduled. In the afternoon of the fifth day the kiddies own circus will be presented by the members of Junior Chautauqua, followed by one act plays and character sketches by members of the Bob Hanscom players, who will also play "Grumpy" as the closing number. Season tickets for adults are $1.50 while children under twelve years of age will be admitted for only 75 cents for entire season. These low prices were made possible with the wonderful co-operation of the people of Graham and surrounding vicinity. Therefore, do not think the Graham chautauqua will be poor, for we have been assured programs will all be of best quality. So pep up, Graham citizens and buy season tickets early and prepare for the best ever.

Mrs. Mattie Moody of Maryville, will present her class of piano pupils in a recital on Saturday night at the M. E. Church in Graham.

IS EXAMPLE FOR ALL BOYS

HANK GOWDY TO LEAVE THE BIG LEAGUE.

HIS RECORD IS CLEAR

On and Off the Field, Veteran Ball Player, Always Conducted Himself Above Reproach.

By Davis J. Walsh,
International News Service Sports Editor.

New York, Aug. 22.—Usually when a man goes out of the big leagues, people speak glowingly of his past, with a note of regret that a career so useful must come to its inevitable conclusion.

Hank Gowdy, of the Giants, is to leave the major leagues at the end of the present season, it seems, and the man who writes an epitaph on his professional tombstone will find himself with an extremely animated corpse on his hands.

Never A Failure.

No one, having observed Hank Gowdy's career on and off the ball field, can be unaware of the fact that such a man will have a future up to and including his final day on earth. Somehow he cannot be associated with failure.

Even in the present instance, Gowdy's withdrawal is not to be confounded with defeat. He leaves the majors to better himself—and at his own request.

Gowdy goes to Columbus (of the American Association), his home town, as manager, in 1926. This may be just the backstretch of his career. It is easy to visualize him returning as a major-league manager within a few years, for he has every virtue of the good manager and none of his faults.

His popularity is universal, his disposition mild, his ethics beyond reproach. Gowdy never has been known to swear. Neither is it of record that he ever voiced an unkind thought or that any act of his was conceived with the idea of working injury upon anyone.

Yet he is not without an unquestioned dignity, and everyone respects him. Furthermore, he knows baseball as few know it, and his moral is nothing short of inspiring.

Gowdy was the first ball player to enlist for the war, and his record at the front was so good that the Army dedicated a baseball field in his name and honor at Columbus, Ga., last spring. It was the army's recognition of a fighting man who never admitted defeat until the last returns were in.

Record Batting.

Baseball's recognition was much earlier and just as sincere. It happened in the 1914 world series, in which the Boston Braves knocked the Athletes off for four straight, with Gowdy crowding one big moment upon another. Never a great hitter, he batted better than .500 for the series, and nearly every hit meant something.

After the Braves had won the first two games in Philadelphia, the Athletics came back and seemed about to win the third game in the tenth inning, when a runner scored on a single and Eddie Murphy added another run by stealing home, while Johnny Evers fondled the ball.

Gowdy, first man up in the final half of the inning, socked the first ball pitched by Joe Bush for a home run, which so inspired the Braves that they tied the score and ultimately won the ball game in the twelfth. Gowdy's homer was the turning point in the series, for had the Athletes won it is conceivable that they would have pulled themselves together for the remainder of the series.

Coler Says Crops Are Fine in Colorado

In a letter to the Democrat-Forum and Tribune for renewing his subscription, Ernest Coler of Amherst, Colo., says that the crops in his section of Colorado are good this year. Mr. Coler's wheat is running out at 24 to 25 bushels per acre and the quality is fine. Hulles oats are returning yields of 21 bushels while the common variety are making yields of about 32 bushels to the acre. Barley and rye are not yet threshed. The corn there suffered for a while from the long dry spell but he says the prospects are that he will have a good crop.

Miss Gertrude Sawyers returned yesterday from St. Joseph where she has been visiting relatives for a few days.

Weather Up to Tricks Geographic Society

While Part of Western Hemisphere Swelters, Other Points are Below Nodmal.

Washington, Aug. 22.—The unusual weather conditions in the Arctic, which caused abandonment for this year of the MacMillan expedition's plans to explore the Polar Sea, were described by the National Geographic Society as apparently only one manifestation of Nature's complexity in producing the present summer.

"A look at weather records with a view of finding whether this is a 'queer summer,' as some laymen assert," said a statement issued by the society, "does not show much that is abnormal in the general weather situation, but it does show what a complex clutter of cross currents go to make up the world weather.

MacMillan Ran Into Ice.

"MacMillan, pushing up the coast of Labrador in June, found more ice than had been present at that season in the memory of the oldest skippers. At the same time, however, the temperature over practically the entire United States was from 1 to 6 degrees above normal. Furthermore, since January, except during a part of May, this excess of heat has been marked over the whole United States. In some regions and in some months the average ran as much as 12 degrees above normal and the area of excess temperature extended well into Canada.

Cold In North, Warm In U. S.

"Beginning the latter part of June, there have been inroads of below normal temperature from the northeast and north, possibly a reflection on the unusually cold conditions which MacMillan has found in the far North. This borne out somewhat by the records from Alaska. Those available (for the early months of 1925 only) show consistently lower temperatures than normal. These abnormally low temperatures were being recorded in Alaska at the time that abnormally high temperatures were present over the United States.

Dauntless Miss Ederle Says That She Will Yet Swim the Channel

By Minott Saunders,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

Gris Nez, Aug. 22.—Gertrude Ederle, brave American swimmer, is undaunted by her first failure to beat the treacherous cold and tides of the fickle English channel.

She vowed today yet to conquer the stretch of water that twists between France and England. But it won't be this season.

Her trainer, Jaboz Wolfe, attributing her failure to lack of proper training in channel swims, declared she would be able to do what no other woman has yet done—master the channel—if she tried again in three weeks. But Miss Ederle has decided against this owing to the lateness of the season.

The sturdy young girl took her defeat in sporting fashion. No excuses nor alibis have come from her.

The last moments of her eventful swim when she had swept past midchannel, breaking time records for the distance gone, are rather a blank to her. She remembers weeping a bit, woman fashion, but not from sadness or discouragement—apparently the tears of utter exhaustion.

"It was funny the way I sank, wasn't it?" she commented after recovering from the first unconsciousness. "The last thing I remember was I began to cry. I don't know why. I wasn't sad and I wanted to go on."

She meditated a moment as she reconstructed that last fight with the swirling channel.

Again she paused, her eyes flashed, and her determined chin took on a fighting tone.

"But I'll make it yet" she vowed. The gorl recalls nothing of the Egyptian Helmy's rescue after she had collapsed, beaten by the tearing waters after she had put every ounce of her magnificent strength into the battle. She does remember that she swallowed bitter salt water.

This undoubtedly hastened her collapse which was complete. The girl declared she did not remember sinking and said she had no unusual feelings as her strength ebbed and finally broke entirely.

Already endeared to hundreds along the coast from her simple charm and her artistic sportsmanship, the girl went back to Boulogne aboard the tug a heroine even though she had been beaten in her valiant attempt to reach the chalk cliffs of Dover.

At the Quay, summer visitors and many even from the capital were on hand. Cheers went up for the courageous young American, who, again revived and lively, smiled acknowledgement of this royal greeting.

Miss Lillian Harrison, Anglo-Argentine swimmer and friend of the American girl, was all sympathy for her plucky little pal.

"We women are out of luck" she observed in the vernacular, "and I certainly regret Gert's failure to reach Dover.

I. Helmy, Egyptian swimmer, now has pulled both Miss Ederle and Miss Harrison out of the channel, has won the title of "savior of the sirens." He was viewed with some curosity and with just a trace of hero worship when he came ashore after his second feat of giving aid to the unconscious.

Everywhere Miss Ederle's pluck is the topic of the hour, mingled with praise for her speed and style.

Mlle. Sion, the French swimmer, who like Miss Ederle had recently failed to buffet her way to the English coast, admired the American girl after she was pulled from the water, cuddling her like a child and whispering to her words of consolation.

CANNOT RADIO ANY PLANETS

EARTH SURROUNDED BY ELECTRIC BARRIER, SAYS NAVY.

STARTLING DISCOVERIE

Navy Investigation is Epic In Radio World—Will Cut Cost To a Fraction.

Washington, August 21.—(United Press)—The earth is forever barred from communicating with other planets. According to a discovery announced by the Navy Department an impervious layer of electrically charged molecules surrounds the earth's atmosphere like the skin of an orange and through it wireless waves cannot pass.

What the world loses in extending its knowledge of the universe by this discovery, it gains, however, an increased efficiency of terrestrial wireless communication. The knowledge of the existence of the ironized layer aids immeasureably in the solution of many radio problems and according to the department should cut the cost of radio transmission to the fraction of its present expense.

So far as the discovery has been applied it affects only dot and dash transmission not radio broadcasting by voice.

Existence of the layer has been suspected for some time having been arrived at theoretically by Haviside in England and Kennerly in the United States, working independently. It fell, however, to the Navy Department at its research laboratory and the Department of Terrestrial Magnetism of Carnegie Institution of Washington to establish it in fact.

The plane is described as a plane of maximum density at varying heights above the surface of the earth depending on the ceaseless billowing of the atmospheric envelope that surrounds the globe. Its maximum height should not be above 300 miles, the outermost limits of hydrogen gas and probably below that.

When a radio wave is dispatched from a station, according to an explanation of how the layer works, the electro-magnetic waves shoot skyward until they hit this layer, whence it rebounds to the earth or travels along the earth like sound waved under the vault of the dome. Simultaneously another branch of the same wave scoots along the earth for a distance.

Scientists experimenting with short wave lengths radio transmission have been baffled by the peculiar behavior of these waves. Signals would be heard at a distance of about 40 or 50 miles when they would disappear and could not again be heard until points hundreds of miles distant picked them up. These intervals of silence became known as skip-distance.

From experiments it was determined that the two waves existed, one that ran along the earth and one which ran along the dense upper layer. From these experiments estimates of the effective height of the layer were made, these estimates being essentially in agreement with the estimates derived from observations on the skip-distance.

With the present knowledge of the subject, high frequency transmission stations can be built for $60,000. Similar stations with poorer service and higher operating costs, built on the old plan, cost $2,000,000.

Kansas City Child Would Enter Movies

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 22—(United Press)—Mary Louise Hall—queen of the incorrigibles—is back in the detention home for the time being.

She was again rounded up after having escaped from the home Thursday, visited the movies, charged $45 worth of clothing and then spent the night in one of the city's finest hotels.

"I'm good but talented" Mary said wistfully when again placed in the home.

"I wish you would really be good" gloomily commented Mary's father, John K. Hall.

Mary has run away from the home on an average of once a month for the past year. One of her recent escapades was a dash to St. Louis—enroute to Broadway—where she was captured and returned to Kansas City.

Her chief desire in dashing away from home is to gain success in the writing or acting field, according to her parents.

After it was found out that she could not be "broken" out of the habit of taking visits to other cities her parents had her sent to a home here. She had consistently refused to obey up to that time. She is but 11 years old.

Officers Arrested for Beating a Prisoner

St. Louis, August 22.—Some additional warrants will be issued today in connection with the alleged brutal treatment given by county officers to George Lenmart, who is held for the murder of his wife. When Lenmart was taken before the judge for arraignment he was found to be suffering from abrasions and bruises. He said he had been strung in his cell so that only his toes touches the floor and that he was taken out in a motor car and beaten.

Four warrants were issued yesterday and one detective agency operator and three county officers were arrested.

Lenmart arrested this week, after several weeks investigation of the death of his wife, whose body was found in a ravine near his home. It is claimed by him that the officers tried to get a confession out of him.
